DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE COMMUNI-CATES WITH GOVERNOR.

Attention Called to Issuing of Naturalization Papers-Representative Landis's Amendment.

The Department of Justice at Washington has sent to Governor Durbin a letter calling attention to the immigration act passed by the last Congress. The section to which the Governor's attention is called is the one that refers to the issuing of naturalization papers by county courts. This act provides that "in order to render a court judgment of naturalization valid the court record must show that the person naturalized is not opposed to all organized government nor affiliated with any organization so opposed; that he does not advocate the unlawful assaulting or killing of officers of government, and has not violated any of the provisions of the said act to regulate the immigration of aliens, and has complied with the terms of previous acts on the subject of naturalization." The act also requires that every certificate of naturalization shall specifically recite that the requirements of the above act and previous acts have been complied with, or be null and void.

This is the statute in which Senator Fairbanks took an active interest last Congress. The senator, before Congress opened, visited Ellis island, the New York immigration station, and made a special study of conditions there. It is this act that carries the section which shuts off the sale of liquor in the national Capitol. It also excludes saloons from immigrant stations. Representative Landis, of Indiana, is responsible for the Capitol liquor clause. In a debate one day Mr. Landis was opposing the sale of liquor in immigrant stations, when some member of the House sneeringly asked why he did not ask for a provision in the bil preventing the sale of liquor in the Capitol building. Mr. Landis promptly announced that he would do so, and the amendment was added. The House passed the bill in that form. It has been said by some that the House members would not have voted the Senate would let the bill pass. It is intimated that the House believed the Senate would promptly kill the Landis amendment. Contrary to this expectation, however, the Senate allowed the section referring to the sale of liquor in the Capitol to remain, and consequently it became unlawful to serve liquors in the Capitol restau-

(CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.) by telling their officers that the troops of the Indiana National Guard would be expected to participate at the camp of mititary instruction at West Point, Ky. The forces of Ohio, Illinois and Indiana will be pitted against the forces of the regular army which will be there. Although Colonel Wagner did not say so in so many words, he intimated that the Indiana troops are looked upon by army officers as among the best of the State Guards.

BUSY DAY IN CAMP.

Soldiers Given Plenty of Drilling, Which They Enjoy.

The camp of the Indiana National Guard was alive with marching soldiers yesterday going through the ordinary routine of camp life. The day was spent by the different regiments in drilling outside the camp, The First Regiment was the first to move.

It was their regular day to take a forced march. After they went through the inspection of the day before the men were in good shape to go on their "hike." They left camp at 9 o'clock and went west on Thirty-eighth street to a clump of woods about two miles west of the camp. For seven hours the soldiers were put through a course of outpost duty, battle formation and other heavy work incident to regular marching orders. A thorough drill was given in firing and fixing hayonets. The men did not return to camp until 5 o'clock. They were tired, yet gave evidences of Kruger at once ordered the Clayton woman having enjoyed their work.

The day was ideal for marching, as the rays of the san were tempered by a strong. wind made itself felt throughout the night and caused the tent flaps to shake to and Iro. Many of the soldiers who were anxious to take a little rest were kept awake trying to fasten their tents. The wind was still blowing a good gale at reveille, when the troops were drawn from their tents. Many of them complained of colds, but none

After mess, when the bugle called for the troops to assemble for guard mount the members of the First Regiment were in shipshape for their day's work. Their driff aid not last long, as word was received from origade headquarters for the troops to move. Accompanying Colonel Mc-Co, was Captain Winshop, t. S. A., who assisted Colonel Barnett in further inspection of the regiment. Colonel McCoy sounded the recall about 5 o'clock, and the troops marched into camp gragging their side arms and telling stories of their day's march. Hardly had they left the field than the Second Regiment, under command of Col. Harry B. Smith, marched into the same field and took up active drill for more than an hour. Captain Winshop did not depart with the First Regiment, but remained and harmaten in the maneuvers of the Second Regiment. Colonel Smith allowed Captain Winship to put the three battalions through some nard work in scouting and battle formation. A few moments before call for mess the troops were assembled into battalion formation and again taken back to camp.

The Third Regiment was not inactive during the day, but was kept within the camp grounds and put through inspection and then sent out to the middle of the race track for scout drill, firing and battle formation. The troops were out but two hours when they were recalled and kept within their quarters in cleaning up their quarters preparatory to the expected forced Battery A of Indianapolis was taken out under command of Walter W. Heiskell, junior first lieutenant and acting captain. The battery was taken to a woods about three miles west of camp and put through some strong work. The deficiencies that cropped out the day before were made acquainted to the men and on these points the men were mostly drilled. Skirmish lines were formed and priming and firing were indulged in. The battery was kept out for two hours, when they also returned

The camp grounds in regard to visitors were more lonesome than on the day before. There were a good many young women who went to the camp to enjoy the drills of the soldiers, and as there seemed to be an air of uncertainty about camp, and this was confided to the warriors, it was amusing to hear the sympathy dealt out to the soldiers who did not know where they were going.

Captain Winship, after his return to camp, said now that he has had an opportunity to look thoroughly over the troops and the equipment he thinks the troops of the Indiana National Guard compare favorably with many of those of the other States of the Union. The captain said the fair grounds were admirably adapted to the use of the National Guard, but the fact that the grounds are too small for drill purposes handicaps the work. In all other respects, he said, the grounds were well fitted for the troops.

Col. Arthur L. Wagner, assistant adjutant general of the Department of the Lakes at Chicago, under command of General John C. Bates, arrived in camp yesterday just before the evening mess. He at once be-came the guest of Governor Durbin, who took him to headquarters and introduced him to General McKee and staff.

At the election held in Company K of the Third Regiment yesterday James F. Lahmann was elected second lieutenant. Mr. Lahmann was formerly captain of the company, but resigned last fall on account of poor health. Since the opening of camp he has been the guest of the members of Company K. Lieutenant Lahmann takes the place of Wade McDougall, who was promoted to first lieutenant. He will be Conduitt and William S. Sherley, named by examined Sunday and will probably receive his commission shortly after the close of

Maj. Francis T. Roots, of Connersville, arrived last night and reported to Governor Durbin. He will remain with the troops until the close of the camp. His son, Clarence F. Rots, will come to-day and will remain in camp with his father. Major Roots is enthusiastic over the formation of Company L. of Connersville, which is now in camp. Major Roots said he assisted materially in forming the company and is pleased that it is one of the largest companies now in the First Regiment. The company is under command of Capt. Fred Barrows, Lieutenants Reynolds and Middleton.

Lieutenant Washburn, of the Third Infantry, is envied by the other members of the regiment. Whenever the lieutenant appeared on parade it was noticed that his face did not bear the marks of attacks by mosquitoes and flies. An investigation was made and it was learned that his tent was papered with fly paper. During the night he has a number of Joss sticks burning about his tent. Some of the other members of the company in passing Thursday night thought they had run across a Chinese laundry. Lieut Washburn explained why the punk was burning and that accounted for the smooth appearance of his counten-

Captain Franklin, of Company H, Second Regiment, made himself good with several young women visitors to the camp yesterday afternoon. While the women were walking down the company street they were badly frightened by seeing a snake about two feet long glide across their path. The women shricked and one of them was | called her vile names in the presence nearly overcome by the sight. Several prinear-by rushed forward, but they were too late. Captain Franklin ran from his tent holding his sword. He ran before the two women and quickly cut off the head of the reptile. The girls were taken back to hospital quarters, where they re-mained until their nerves settled.

About a month ago Mary Crolly, sixteen, and her eighteen-year-old sister Ethel came to Indianapolis from Shelbyville and together went to the Clayton woman's house. Several days ago the sixteen-year-old girl went to her home and told her mother of the life she and her sister had been leading in this city and said that her sister was still an inmate of the Indianapolis resort. Yesterday Mrs. Crolly and her youngest daughter went to the police station and told Captain Kruger of the life the eldest girl was leading and the mother implored the police to save her daughter for her. Captain arrested as well as all the inmates of her resort, but the Crolly girl was not among them. Della Clayton said that Ethel Crolly had been an inmate of her house until a few days ago, when she left, saying she was going to her home in Shelbyville, and up to the present time the police have been unto locate her. Mrs. Crolly said that she had been deceived by her daughters, as both had told her they had secured em-ployment in a store in this city, and the comecoming of her youngest daughter was the first knowledge she had received of their real life here. The search for the missing girl was continued last night and the anxious mother waited here until this morning in the hope of finning her daughter. The police think the girl has left the city and gone to some near-by town to live, and have communicated with the authorities in all the cities where she will be most

Henry Hearfer, 42 South Capitol avenue, was arrested last night by Bicyclemen Morgan and Simon on a charge of drawing deadly weapons and malicious trespass. Hearfer, it is said, went to the home of Mrs. Mary Mackey, in the English block, in an intoxicated condition last night and demanded that she give him 50 cents. . She refused to give him any money and, becoming angered, he secured a hatchet and attempted to strike her with it. His plans were frustrated by a neighbor, who, on hearing the woman's cries, went to her rescue and wrested the weapon from the hands of the wild man. Hearfer then went away, but later returned and renewed his demand for money and on being again re-fused became infuriated and broke a baby buggy which was standing in the room into pieces and threw it out the window The police arrived just in time to catch him as he was going out the front door.

The American Standard is published by the Frankfort Publishing Company, a concern that seems to be prosperous, since Mr. Clark came to the city to file a certificate showing an increase in the company's capital stock from $5,000 to $12,000. Colonel Clark asserted that 90 per cent. of the Democrats of Indiana are for Bryan and his principles. He admits, however, that the other 10 per cent., the faction that might be termed the Cleveland wing of the party, controls the organization. Colonel Clark was formerly a Republican.

After a session of six weeks the Indianapolis summer high school closed yesterday. There were more than twice as many students in attendance as were expected by the promoters, and next year the curriculum will be enlarged. Although the summer school was advertised but a few weeks before it began, the session has been very successful. The term lasted six weeks, but the same amount of work was accomplished as in the winter term of eighteen weeks. Not as many subjects were completed in the summer as in the winter course on account of the increased amount of study. Examinations were given frequently and a majority of those in attendance passed them successfully. Certificates will be issued to all the pupils, who will receive credit for their work in either of the two high schools. The faculty was composed of the following teachers, selected from the two high schools: Charles S. Thomas, principal, English; Daniel T. Wier, assistant principal, physics; Arthur W.
